CIRCUS DAY SCENES

The Big Show Whose Specialty Is Doing All It Advertises.

Once more the Ringling Brothers' mammoth circus has spent a day in Phoenix and it is only modest to say that this great amusement aggregation is keeping pace with the progress of the world in general and that each succeeding season finds it a bigger and a better show than ever. It is really amazing that the Ringlings or anybody else can travel over the country with such an army of entertainers, such a monster menagerie and such a stupendous quantity of paraphernalia and properties, making one day stands and filling all enclosures satisfactorily.

All Thursday night the big trains were coming in from the south and in the very early morning, began the transfer of the enormous tent city from the railroad yards to the show grounds. Between 11 and 12 o'clock was given the usual parade, only it was unusual in that it was longer and more imposing than ever and contained a number of new and novel features. Though the modern circus is always accompanied by a big menagerie, the equine species always was and always will be the most spectacular feature. Civilized man places the horse above all other animals and though there is nothing novel about a horse a vast number of superbly fine animals always attracts attention. And the Ringling horse show is one of surpassing splendor. There are hundreds of horses and they are all the best that money can buy. There is no place a poor horse can be used in a modern circus, even for the most humble work and the draft teams themselves are a part of the show while there is a regiment of horses trained for any purpose or another, not all of them by any means being used in the swiftest sense.

The menagerie proper contains this year a larger number and greater variety of animals than last year. Among them is noted a new giraffe, one that was secured late last season, but not exhibited until this year. It is a much larger animal than the one shown last year, and which is still exhibited, the two making a fine looking pair. There is also a herd of bunnies that was recently added to the menagerie, and the elephant and camel herds are bigger and more wonderful than ever. The elephant climbing the most attention being Baby Bos, born in captivity. A particularly attractive cage of monkeys comes from Japan, and they all have red faces that look like they were painted. All manner of wild beasts are seen in the menagerie from the jungle kings to the inhabitants of the polar regions and the desert plains.

The ring performances were great of course and held the closest attention of the big audiences both afternoon and evening. It was estimated that there were nearly 8000 people present in the afternoon and almost as many were on the grounds at night, though the attendance at a circus is always hard to estimate for the reason that while the seats usually seem to be full the density of the audience can be judged only by those familiar with crowds of that kind.

There were three big rings and two stages and there was something doing most of the time in all five of the places, while an army of clowns circulated everywhere and many specialties found place for action in the big hippodrome track that surrounded the rings. The performance began with the big spectacular production of "The Taming of the Wild Horses" and was followed by the usual variety of horseback riding, gymnastics, aerial bar and trapeze work, trained animal exhibitions, juggling, etc., the only unusual thing being that the programme was more varied and in some features better than ever before. The trained horses as usual brought much applause and the tricks of the trained seals are ever a source of wonder. The programme went through at both performances without hitch or accident.

One novelty never seen here before was Chase's daredevil feat, leaping the gap. It lasted but a moment but it was a moment of suspense till the man and wheel after a flight through the air rested firmly on the ground again. The performance closed with the hippodrome races that are now considered as necessary a part of a circus entertainment as the menagerie or any other feature that has become almost classical.

IMPERIAL AND TOMBSTONE
Satisfactory Development Going on in Both Big Camps.

W. F. Staunton spent yesterday in Phoenix, arriving from the south on the morning train and returning to Silver Bell again last night. Asked concerning the progress of operations at the Imperial mine at Silver Bell, he said everything was moving with the greatest satisfaction. About 300 men are employed and everything is working out as planned.

There is one train a day each way over the Imperial railroad, which is twenty-three miles long, between the mine and Red Rock station. Just at present there is also a work train running, but it does not make regular trips. The regular train carries about one hundred tons of ore daily to Red Rock and from there it is sent to the Copper Queen smelter at Douglas for reduction. The returns secured from this ore have so far been fully equal to expectation.

Asked concerning the Tombstone mines which are also being opened under the direction of Mr. Staunton, he said that everything is going along nicely except that there were more water, rather more water, than had been expected. This makes progress a little slower, but progress is being made nevertheless and very notably. They are pumping about three million gallons of water per day from the mine and are constantly sinking, though not quite as fast as they had hoped. The deepest workings are now 810 feet, which is something over 250 feet below the water level existing when the pumps were first started. Though the draining of the mine is slow work, it is thorough and the drained levels are now perfectly dry.

The ground is being opened on the first level below the old water level, or more explicitly, a hundred feet below the former water level, in three shafts, namely the Emerald, the Silver Thread and the West Side. In all these shafts there is difficulty from water in the new ground opened, which is of course encouraging to the management and demonstrates that the big pumps are not lowering the water in the single shaft alone but in the entire basin.

TOURED THE SOUTHLAND

Return of Doctor and Mrs. Halsey Thursday Morning.

Rev. Dr. Lewis Halsey returned home Thursday morning, accompanied by his bride, who was Miss Fannie P. Tangeman (Ill Sept. 20, when they were married at Gladstone, the Tangeman homestead in Wyoming, Ohio, a beautiful suburb of Cincinnati).

The wedding was a most happy one and the occasion one of great festivity. The floral decorations were most beautiful, consisting largely of palms, roses, China asters, eupatorium, etc. Telegrams of congratulation were received from the bride's brother, Mr. George P. Tangeman of Glen Cove, L. I., sent from Paris, France, and from the Masonic lodge of Phoenix.

The wedding presents were numerous and handsome and included a $500 check from the bride's brother, Dr. Halsey is pastor of the First Baptist church of Phoenix and president of the Baptist convention of Arizona. Mrs. Halsey has been one of the foremost workers in the Wyoming Baptist church and will be a great help to her husband in his labors here. Their acquaintance was formed here a year and a half ago when Miss Tangeman and her brother were visiting Phoenix.

Their wedding tour was really their journey home, which was a pleasant one, though interfered with by the recent washouts. They went to Chicago where they spent a week with Dr. Halsey's son, Henry. After starting west the trip was uneventful till the washout region was reached. They were then detained through southern Texas and got a glimpse of the sunny south and the cotton fields, going north from El Paso and to Phoenix via Ash Fork.

Save Your Daughter

No. 165 West 8th Street,
New York City, N. Y., April 3, 1903.

Wine of Cardui has been a blessing to my home. I have often found that it was a great relief when I was weary or in pain, but I am especially grateful for what it did for our daughter and only child. I noticed that her menses were tardy and she suffered with headaches and dizziness, heaviness in the abdomen and about the loins. This seriously interfered with her studies and she had to discontinue several of them.

A visitor calling on me and discussing the matter suggested that I give her a course of your Wine of Cardui as it had relieved her daughter of a similar trouble. After my daughter had used it for five weeks I found a great improvement in her looks, health and behavior, in fact she was a different girl. The flow became regular and she has not had any difficulty since.

Lydie H. Thompson
TREASURER, RATHBONE MEMORIAL ASSOCIATION.

WINE of CARDUI

Here the menstrual function had not been properly started and the unnatural condition was making the young girl an invalid. The headaches and dizziness, indicated something more than a mere temporary ailment. They were symptoms of a functional weakness which would become more and more aggravated as years went by. But Mrs. Thompson was ready to take advice for her daughter's welfare and she gave the little sufferer Wine of Cardui and now she is a well young woman.

If your daughter is sickly and frequently ailing the letter of this good mother contains the best advice you can follow.

Wine of Cardui is the menstrual regulator that cures nine cases out of every ten. Young girls, mothers and aged women find this tonic indispensable. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles Wine of Cardui.
